Jesus' entry into Jerusalem

By WILLIAM L. TRIMYER
The Choice To Go Or Stay
Lesson for February 6, 1983
Bible Study Passages: Luke 19:29-40, 45-48
Introduction

This week's lesson focuses upon Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem. Only a few weeks ago we were looking at Jesus as the gift of God. Now we begin to turn our attention to the Passion of Christ. "set his face" to meet head on the suffering that awaited him to fulfill the mission and purpose of his life.

It is no easy task to choose those undertain paths in life. We may teeter-totter on the fence of indecision, knowing we must choose but wishing we didn't have to. Sometimes the only certainty we have is uncertainty, the only guarantee is no guarantee.

Some of those paths we must travel are lonely and dark. The road to Jerusalem was not a "Primrose Land!" The choice to go or stay is a lonely one. No one can make our choices for us, unless we choose for them to. It is easier for us if another steps in to choose for us, but in so doing we lose our sense or integrity and control.

Sometimes we are afraid to choose a certain path for fear of failure or ridicule. When we fail to make choices we know deep down inside are right for us, we may hear the "cock crow" inside of us.

Humble Entry [Luke 19:29-40]

In keeping with his servant image, Jesus chose to enter Jerusalem in a spirit of humility. He did not enter as a glorious warrior, clothed in shining armor. Instead, Jesus fulfilled the ancient prophecy that spoke of the coming King as "having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass" (Zech. 9:9).

While Jesus never encouraged pomp and grandeur to announce his arrival, he did not discourage the affection and recognition that his disciples and followers gave him upon his entry into the city of Jerusalem. Clip-clip, clip-clop. The little donkey's hooves make puffs of dust as it carries Jesus over the sun-baked road. Before his path the people throw cloaks and branches as an act of celebration and honor. This was truly a coronation for the King of kings.

The Compassionate Jesus [Luke 19:41-44]

Not everyone in the crowd that day were sympathetic to Jesus or the mission. No doubt there were those present who were there as "scouts" or representatives of the Pharisees and those who had only one thing on their mind, namely, to do away with this Jesus.

As Jesus approached the city he wept wet tears of compassion for a people whose doom was settled. Jesus experienced their blindness and hard-heartedness, and lamented over what might have been. Even as he made his entry into Jerusalem Jesus longed for a change of heart towards the message of the kingdom he came to proclaim. But the people of this city refused to hear him.

Jesus Expresses His Anger [Luke 19:45-48]

Jesus was a man of great compassion. He was also capable of great bursts of emotion . . . even anger. When he entered the temple and saw how it was used and defiled, he purged the temple of those who were there as sellers.

When Jesus encountered the sellers in the temple, he didn't simply speak softly and ask them to leave. He whipped their backsides and yelled at them. They did not have to second guess what he was saying to them. It stands to reason that the common folk saw Jesus as a champion for their poor plight. Those who sold, wheeled, and dealed in the temple did so quite often without feeling for those who were poor.

Jesus was popular among those who had no power or position, and this group far outnumbered the crowd who wanted to do away with him.

Some might thinkt hat Jesus was a loser, that because he received a crown of thorns instead of a "victory wreath" he was the loser of all losers. However, we know that in his great wisdom God brought immense good out of evil.

New funds available

By JAMES A. SMITH

Farmers have a new source of funds to assist during these difficult days. Following is some information about the funds.

The Virginia Agricultural Development Authority will be involved in selling tax exempt Agricultural Revenue Bonds to provide agricultural development loans to borrowers. These loans may be used only to acquire, construct or reconstruct projects meeting the standards set forth in the Program Guidelines.

These loans to farmers cannot be used to provide working capital or production loans to refinance existing indebtedness or finance residential housing. The loans may be used to finance real estate used in the farm or ranch operation and improvements to real estate such as terracing, drainage wells and water impoundment. Depreciable fixtures to real estate including but not limited to the following: buildings used to shelter livestock and equipment and store and preserve grain such as cribs and bins.

The minimum amount of an agricultural project loan will be $10,000 and the maximum amount cannot exceed $850,000. A lender may pool loans so that the aggregate amount may be equal to or greater than the minimum amount of $10,000. Loans to farmers can be for no longer period of time than the deposit term of the bond.

For a farmer to be eligible he must be a resident of Virginia. If he is an individual he must be actively engated in an agricultural operation after receiving the loan. If the borrower is a firm, partnership or corporation, at least one of the owners, partners or stockholders must be a natural person actively engated in an agricultural operation after receiving the loan.

Who can make these loans to farmers? For a lender to be eligible to participate in the program the bank must have been engaged in commercial banking for at least five years and be qualified in the State of Virginia to originate and service loans; and have deposits insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; must be experienced in originating and servicing agricultural loans; must not have been on the Federal Comptrollers "Supervised" or "Watch List" or similar listing by Virginia Department of Banking in the past three years. There are other criteria that must be met.

This is an opportunity for those qualifying persons to get long term loans at a fixed rate over a period of time. These deposits from the Authority afford banks to make qualifying long term loans at fixed rates without losing money on the loans when rates go up. If you are interested, contact your local bank to see if they will participate in this program. The loans will need to be initiated very shortly as the deadline for lenders to submit their application to the Authority is Friday, Feb. 4, 1983.

Farm record books are available from our office. Cost is $2.00 each.

Farmers Tax Guides are available from our office or from a bank in the county.

Virginia has been selected as the first state to receive funds from ACTION, the national volunteer agency, to conduct a water/energy demonstration project that will serve as a model conservation program for other communities and states. A $44,299 grant was awarded to the Virginia Water Resources Research Center at Virginia Tech to implement a statewide program of free materials, practical equipment, and information that will offer recipients immediate water and energy savings.

An estimated 121,400 volunteers are expected to be involved in the program, according to project director Kathy Sevebeck. Volunteers will be trained in water and energy conservaiton tactics - how to insulate a water heater, how to reduce water use, how to install water-saving devices, and why energy and water are the "dynamic duo."

During the one-year statewide campaign, 100,000 WET conservation kits will be distributed to Virginians. The free kits will contain a brochure on water conservation, a toilet-leak test package, a water flow-control device that will reduce consumption of water in the shower by half, a "Hot Water Handbook" and a toll-free energy hot-line card.

ASCS Today

By TOM CONRAD

Report Farm Changes, Farmers Advised - Appomattox County farmers were urged today to report any changes in their farm operations which could affect farm program benefits for 1983.

For ASCS to help producers get program benefits, farm records must be up to date. Therefore, producers should contact the county ASCS office if a farm will have a new owner effective for 1983, or if a change is made in the operaiton of an existing unit.

Plans to combine farms or divide a farm should be requested as soon as possible because reconstitutions require special processing as well as county committee approval.

Likewise, farmers who want to establish proven yields for 1983 feed grains or wheat should assemble proof of production records for this year's crop. February 15 is the final date to turn production evidence in. Production evidence must be kept separate for each year and for each farm.

New Grower Application - Applications for new grower tobacco allotments will be taken at the county office until February 15. Certain requirements must be met before the allotment or quota can be recommended. Interested producers should contact the office for more information.

Wheat-Feed Grain Signup Date Changed - The signup for participation in the wheat and feed grain programs originally scheduled to go through March 31 has been changed to end on March 11, the same final enrollment date as the PIK program. Farmers with bases are asked to stop by the ASCS office and let us go over the programs with you to see how they can fit into your farming operations.

Adult Education

Registration continues

Registration for second semester adult education classes is continuing for classes which will begin the week of Feb. 7. Adults who are interested and who want to participate in classes that are being offered the second semester by the Appomattox County School Division are requested to register now by calling 352-8253 between the hours of 8:30 - 5:00 or by mailing in a registration form. Please look at the class schedule located elsewhere in this issue of the Times-Virginian for information concerning classes offered.

"It is very important that persons pre-register for classes," states R. B. Carter, Coordinator of Adult Education. "Pre-registration is used to determine whether enrollment is sufficient to offer a particular class. An enrollment of ten persons is required for a class to be offered."

Persons who desire information concerning an adult class are requested to contact the School Board Office by calling 352-8253.
